This presentation will cover preliminary results from an ecological pilot study exploring barriers and facilitators for survivors of chronic brain injury to regularly engage in physical activity and future plans to address and study novel strategies to overcome the barriers and leverage the facilitators.